

Dear Walking Fish Members,

This week we will be bringing everyone Spanish mackerel. These fish are migratory, travelling along the east coast this time of year. Spanish mackerel are plentiful with no issues of overfishing and are abundant in the Atlantic Ocean. These fish were caught in a run-around gillnet with very little bycatch.

Share Description:

The Spanish Mackerel were provided by Ocracoke Seafood Co. and were caught in the Pamlico Sound using run-around gillnets. The Ocracoke Seafood Company is owned by the 30 or so fishermen that are a part of the Ocracoke Foundation. Back in 2006, when the local fishermen heard the last fish house was being sold, they came together and bought and renovated what is now the Ocracoke Seafood Company.
